“ ALEX, I hope you run till you are out of breath, race cars to your heart's content, and shoot the biggest buck around. Stay close to your PaPa cause he sure has missed you. He is complete now with you by his side. No more pain, braces or wheelchairs. Be the boy you were always meant to be. I will miss u here. To his family: May God wrap his arms around you at this difficult time and give you peace.

“ Rest In Peace Alex. My mom Jennifer was his early learning teacher, helped him do a lot. She taught him for 3 years...he was the sweetest, kindest, nice-spirited little boy, it's a shame to see him go, I'm sure he's having a nice time in heaven right now, we all wish he was with us right now and that we could see him again... Last time my Mom and I saw him was in Wal-Mart, he was enjoying himself looking for toys eating some chips. But I guess the Lord decided it was his time to go...RIP Alex Carter.

“ Alex you hold a very special place in my heart. I will never forget Wed. Dec.15 when I took you home and before i closed my door you told me Byyyyyyyyy. I had no idea that it was going to be the last time I heard that from you. I will miss you dearly. But now I know you are with your best buddy (papa). You are walking, running and talking to all the babes. I love you Alex!!!

“ Alex brought so much joy into my life daily as a sub at Scottsburg. It was a pure joy to get him off of the bus and see him wave at us threw the window before the bus came to a halt. He did not always want to do his work...would put his little hand to his forehead and act like his head was hurting and then laugh when I would tease him about it. He was so full of life, so full of joy, so full of stubborn boy behavior, he was our Alex and you the family did not mind sharing him. THANK YOU to the family for sharing Sweet Alex. My Prayers and love are with you!
