“ Good ole Charlie! He chewed tobacco or backer as we called it. We lived on a gravel road at that time and Charlie lived down hill from us. Now this was in later 50's and the boys/men would spend spare time sitting on a coke case on the porch of the only store in Thida. He kept a plug of “Days Work” chewing tobacco in his hip pocket. As he would walk home he had to pass our house. Even though I was about 4 years old, I could hear the gravel crunching under his feet as he walked. I knew it was him by the way he made those gravel pop. Even if I was engrossed in play I'd leave it. Remember hitting that screen door and running across the yard waving, “ Charlie Pratt, Charlie Pratt”. He'd stop and wait on me. When I got there I'd say, “can I have a chew of backer?” He'd laugh , pull it out and let me bite it off. He grew tired of me catching him so often and backer was 25 cents a plug! So he started telling me he had just peed on it, I'd snarl my nose and pass on the chew. 😂 how'd I chew it? I don't know, more than likely I didn't keep it in my mouth very long. So glad it didn't become a habit for me!
