“ My favorite was when poppa would say to me, "let's go loafing". Loafing meant riding around visiting folks, of course then I had no idea what it was, but it was always fun, and I .knew I liked it. Poppa would never tell me where exactly we were loafing to, and I wonder if he even knew himself at that exact moment. We would cruise around until we landed at some friend or family members house. It seems like we always visited someone else each time....but we did lots of 'loafing', that I know. I'm sure I talked his ears off just like I did him and Ninnie when I would go driving the country with them in the big rig for wal-mart! I love you and miss you poppa.....Ninnie has been waiting quite a while for you.
