“ I have such fond memories of Mrs. McQueen dating back to 1966 in Dallas, Texas, when I attended elementary school with her son, my classmate, Steve. Without fail, she was always ahead of the end of school bell, waiting in her car by the bike rack to pick up Steve. Thank goodness for social media as I reconnected with Mrs. McQueen on Facebook. I always enjoyed reading and responding to her posts. She always had such kind words to share with me in my own grief of losing my husband and mother. Undoubtedly, she missed her husband and sister so much and now in God's perfect timing, she has been reunited with both of them and will live eternally in the arms of Jesus. I will miss you Mrs. McQueen. While many may have referred to you as Helen, I could not. I always have had and always will have the utmost respect for you. God bless your sweet soul Mrs. McQueen. ~ Denise Land Hunter
