“ I'm so sad to learn about the passing of Natalina. So pleased to know that she is now making jewellery in the sky with Jesus. I never got to meet Natalina in person, although we did get to talk over skype once. I felt like I knew her through her amazing podcast ministry. Natalina was so honest and wore her heart on her sleeve. Natalina, I'm so glad you got to spend your last few years with Nathan. I can't imagine what he (and family) must be going through right now. Even though I live so far away, I promise I'll keep on checking in on Nathan.

“ I met Natalie the first day of 5th grade. I was by myself on the merry go round at recess and she came over to play with me. We decided to walk home after school only to discover we lived across the street from each other. We became best friends and were close through college. After that, however, we lost touch but I never stopped thinking about her. I was so happy to find her on Facebook. I wish we could have spent some time together in person before her passing. She will always mean a lot to me and I will miss her very much.

“ I met Natalie, aka Natalina, way back in the Myspace days not long after she had started her original Extraordinary Intelligence blog, before she got saved and changed directions. Also had the honor of being the second guest on the third episode of her podcast in 2013. We never met in person, but exchanged messages and spoke on the phone a few times and exchanged content for our respective blogs. It's amazing the connections you can make with someone you've never met.

My condolences to her husband, dogs and, of course, King Solomon.

“ What an amazing soul, gone too soon from the earthly world. I vividly remember a long conversation I had with her about her Faith, and it was inspiring. She sold me a piece of jewelry that was a gift for my mother, with the word "faith" on it. It was a favorite piece of mums and mum held a special place in her heart for a woman she had never met, but felt a connection with because of the love she felt from the necklace.

That is how powerful Natalie was. She reached people she never even realized. What an angel heaven has gained. My thoughts are with all of her family.

“ I never had the privilege of meeting Natalie in person - I do look forward to seeing her at the marriage supper of the Lamb. She was a good, kind, loving, honest and caring person, a bright star for many. Her husband and family are, I am sure, stricken with grief at losing her - but it will be only a while ....her Lord has welcomed her home, with “Well done thou good and faithful servant”. Shalom!

“ Mine was just one of the countless lives that Natalie changed with her joy, kindness & love for Jesus. I will forever be grateful for the 26 years I got to call her my friend. She always showed me the best in myself when I couldn't see it. Until we meet again sweet friend.
